Reading aid, not a substitute. Every entry carries a numbered source that resolves to the EDPB page at the end.

How to read this

For 119 documents the takeaway was written from the document: what it establishes, who it binds and what to do about it. They are marked "source: published document" and set with a heavy left rule. For the remaining 434, which are approvals of binding corporate rules, accreditation requirements, national DPIA lists, certification criteria, institutional reports and the Board's own procedures, a one-line description says what the document is so it can be ruled in or out.

The choice of which documents earned a written takeaway follows the topics of the site this digest accompanies (privacy operations, the AI Act, assessment tools), not the document's importance in general. Dates are the publication dates shown in the EDPB listing on 23 October 2026. Guidelines still at consultation stage appear on the EDPB consultations page and are here only once the documents listing carries a version.

Documents are grouped by publication type, newest first within each group by the date on the EDPB listing, which is the publication date; where the adoption date differs, the takeaway says so. The number in brackets on each entry is its source number; the source list at the end gives the EDPB URL for every one of the 553 documents.

Guidelines 3/2025 on the interplay between the Digital Services Act and the GDPR

[1] · Guideline · 17 September 2026 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT MARKETING LAWFUL BASIS DPIA

The DSA supplies no GDPR legal basis of its own: the Article 26 advertising transparency duty is not a basis for choosing which advert reaches whom. Adverts based on profiling with special category data, inferred data included, are banned even where an Article 9(2) exception would apply; recommender options must be presented equally, with no background profiling while the non-profiling option is on; and a systemic risk found under Articles 34 and 35 makes a DPIA likely to be mandatory. Applies to intermediary services, online platforms and very large platforms and search engines acting as controllers or processors. Final version of 17 September 2026, replacing the 2025 consultation draft; check ad targeting, recommender systems and risk assessments against both laws.

Guidelines 02/2025 on processing of personal data through blockchain technologies

[2] · Guideline · 07 July 2026

Final guidelines on blockchain: a public permissionless chain makes erasure and rectification hard to honour, so store personal data off-chain where possible and run a DPIA where the processing is likely to be high risk, and always before putting identifiable data on a public chain. Version 2.0, adopted 7 July 2026. Outside the site's topics.

Guidelines 02/2024 on Article 48 GDPR

[3] · Guideline · 05 June 2025 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT TRANSFERS CONTROLLER PROCESSOR

A request from a third-country court or authority is not in itself a legal basis for processing nor a ground for transfer: the controller or processor needs an Article 6 basis and a Chapter V transfer tool. A mutual legal assistance treaty or similar agreement can supply both, as a legal obligation or public interest task under Article 6(1)(c) or (e) and as appropriate safeguards under Article 46(2)(a); without one, the organisation still needs an Article 6 basis and a Chapter V ground, which in practice is usually a narrowly read Article 49 derogation, since few international agreements of this kind exist. Processors receiving such requests must inform the controller promptly. Version 2.0 was adopted 4 June 2025 after consultation on the December 2024 draft; version 2.1 of 20 June 2025 only improves the resolution of the annex.

Guidelines 2/2023 on Technical Scope of Art. 5(3) of ePrivacy Directive

[4] · Guideline · 16 October 2024 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT COOKIES TRACKING CONSENT

Article 5(3) of the ePrivacy Directive applies whenever information, personal or not, is stored on or accessed from terminal equipment connected to a public communications network, and the guidelines read each element broadly. URL and pixel tracking, tracking based on an IP address originating from the user's device, unique identifiers collected by client-side code, IoT device reporting and local processing whose results are transmitted all fall within scope, so they need consent or a strict necessity exemption whether or not a cookie is used. Version 2.0, adopted 7 October 2024 after public consultation, applies to any provider of online services; audit all client-side scripts and identifiers, not just cookies.

Guidelines 01/2023 on Article 37 Law Enforcement Directive

[5] · Guideline · 19 June 2024

Guidelines on Article 37 of the Law Enforcement Directive: transfers by police and judicial authorities to third countries on the basis of appropriate safeguards. Police and justice sector.

Guidelines 03/2021 on the application of Article 65(1)(a) GDPR

[6] · Guideline · 24 May 2023

Guidelines on when the Board may adopt a binding decision under Article 65(1)(a) after a relevant and reasoned objection. Procedure between authorities.

Guidelines 04/2022 on the calculation of administrative fines under the GDPR

[7] · Guideline · 24 May 2023 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT ENFORCEMENT

Supervisory authorities calculate GDPR fines in five steps: identify the processing operations and apply Article 83(3), set a starting point from the seriousness of the infringement (0 to 10 percent, 10 to 20 percent or 20 to 100 percent of the legal maximum) adjusted for the undertaking's turnover, weigh aggravating and mitigating circumstances, apply the legal maximum, and check that the result is effective, proportionate and dissuasive. The guidelines bind authorities in their own practice and apply to controllers and processors that are undertakings. Use the method to model exposure and to evidence the mitigating factors, such as cooperation and remedial action, that reduce the amount.

Guidelines 05/2022 on the use of facial recognition technology in the area of law enforcement

[8] · Guideline · 17 May 2023

Guidelines on facial recognition technology in law enforcement: necessity and proportionality, the uses the Board says should be banned, such as remote identification in public and categorisation by protected characteristics, and the safeguards the Law Enforcement Directive requires. Police sector.

Guidelines 01/2022 on data subject rights - Right of access

[9] · Guideline · 17 April 2023 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT RIGHTS

The right of access has three parts: confirmation that data are processed, access to the data themselves, and the Article 15 information on purposes, categories, recipients, retention, rights and safeguards. Controllers must provide a free first copy, in a commonly used electronic form where the request was made electronically unless the person asks otherwise, respond within one month extendable by two, may layer large volumes only if all layers are available at once, must interpret manifestly unfounded or excessive narrowly and prove it, and may limit only the data, not the accompanying information, to protect others' rights. Build the response procedure around these points, since the EDPB ran a coordinated enforcement action on the right of access in 2024, reported in January 2025.

Guidelines 8/2022 on identifying a controller or processor's lead supervisory authority

[10] · Guideline · 17 April 2023 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT GOVERNANCE ENFORCEMENT CONTROLLER PROCESSOR

The lead supervisory authority for cross-border processing is the authority of the main establishment: for a controller the place of central administration in the Union unless decisions on purposes and means are taken and implemented elsewhere, for a processor its central administration or, failing that, where the main processing takes place. The 2023 update adds that main establishment attaches to a single controller and cannot be extended to joint controllers, each of which keeps its own; version 2.1 only corrects a footnote. Forum shopping is not permitted, and a processor working for a controller established in the EEA is supervised by the controller's lead authority. The guidelines replace WP244 rev.01; document the main establishment analysis with objective evidence.

Guidelines 9/2022 on personal data breach notification under GDPR

[11] · Guideline · 04 April 2023 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT BREACH SECURITY

Controllers notify a personal data breach to the competent supervisory authority without undue delay and where feasible within 72 hours of becoming aware, unless it is unlikely to result in a risk, and communicate to data subjects only where the risk is high; every breach, notified or not, is documented under Article 33(5). Version 2.0 changes one point from WP250 rev.01, which it replaces: a controller not established in the Union but subject to Article 3(2) does not benefit from the one-stop-shop and must notify every supervisory authority whose Member State has affected data subjects. Non-EU controllers should map notification routes per Member State in advance.

Guidelines 03/2022 on deceptive design patterns in social media platform interfaces: how to recognise and avoid them

Interfaces that push users into unintended or harmful choices about their data breach the fairness principle in Article 5(1)(a), transparency in Article 12, data minimisation in Article 5(1)(c) and data protection by design in Article 25. The guidelines sort such patterns into six categories, overloading, skipping, stirring, obstructing, fickle and left in the dark, across registration, privacy notices, consent and settings, rights requests and account closure. They address social media providers, designers and users, recommend interdisciplinary teams that include DPOs, and version 2.0 renames dark patterns as deceptive design patterns. Use the categories as a review checklist for any consent or settings interface, since the EDPB applied the same reasoning in Binding Decision 2/2023.

Guidelines 05/2021 on the Interplay between the application of Article 3 and the provisions on international transfers as per Chapter V of the GDPR

[13] · Guideline · 24 February 2023 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT TRANSFERS

A transfer under Chapter V requires three cumulative conditions: the exporter is subject to the GDPR for the processing, it discloses or makes data available to a separate controller or processor, and that importer is in a third country, whether or not itself subject to the GDPR. Direct disclosure by the data subject and access by the same controller's own employee abroad are not transfers, but remote access by a separate entity, even display on a screen, is. Version 2.0 confirms Chapter V applies to importers caught by Article 3(2) and adds twelve illustrated examples. Map every third-country access path, including support and administration, against the three criteria.

Guidelines 07/2022 on certification as a tool for transfers

[14] · Guideline · 24 February 2023

Guidelines on certification as a transfer tool under Article 46(2)(f): what a certification scheme must contain for an exporter to rely on a third-country importer's certification. The first scheme was approved for this use in April 2026 (Europrivacy, Opinion 15/2026); certification, the covered processing and the binding commitments must together satisfy Article 46(2)(f).

Guidelines 01/2021 on Examples regarding Personal Data Breach Notification

[18] · Guideline · 03 January 2022 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT BREACH SECURITY

Eighteen fictional but representative cases across six categories, ransomware, data exfiltration attacks, internal human risk, lost or stolen devices and paper, mispostal and social engineering, show how to assess risk and decide whether to notify the supervisory authority under Article 33 and communicate to data subjects under Article 34. Each case sets out the prior security measures expected, the risk assessment, mitigation and resulting obligations, and complements the general notification guidance now found in Guidelines 9/2022. The guidelines address controllers; use the cases to calibrate an incident triage procedure, remembering that any change in circumstances can change the risk level and the outcome.

Guidelines 10/2020 on restrictions under Article 23 GDPR

[19] · Guideline · 13 October 2021

Guidelines on Article 23: Member State laws restricting data subject rights must be necessary, proportionate and foreseeable, time-limited where the ground for the restriction is itself temporary, and cannot suspend rights wholesale. Relevant to legislators and public bodies.

Guidelines 02/2021 on virtual voice assistants

Virtual voice assistants fall under Article 5(3) of the ePrivacy Directive as well as the GDPR: storing or accessing data on the device requires prior consent unless strictly necessary to perform a service the user requested, and processing for model improvement, advertising profiling or personalisation beyond the requested service needs, in principle, consent under Article 6(1)(a). Voice recordings are inherently biometric data and fall under Article 9 when used to identify a person, data captured through accidental activation is very unlikely to have a legal basis and should be deleted unless one can be shown, and indefinite retention breaches storage limitation. The guidelines apply to VVA providers, designers, application developers, device manufacturers and integrators. Map the roles in your VVA ecosystem and build voice-based ways to exercise access and erasure.

Guidelines 07/2020 on the concepts of controller and processor in the GDPR

[21] · Guideline · 07 July 2021 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT CONTROLLER PROCESSOR GOVERNANCE

Controller and processor are functional, autonomous concepts fixed by who actually determines the purposes and the essential means of processing (data types, retention, recipients, data subjects), not by contractual labels; non-essential means can be left to the processor. Joint controllership arises from common or converging decisions that are inextricably linked, and needs a transparent Article 26 arrangement. An Article 28 contract must be specific to the processing rather than restating the GDPR, and sub-processors require prior authorisation. The guidelines apply to controllers, processors and supervisory authorities across the EEA; version 2.1 of 20 September 2022 is the current text of this 7 July 2021 version.

Guidelines 8/2020 on the targeting of social media users

[22] · Guideline · 13 April 2021 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT MARKETING CONTROLLER PROCESSOR LAWFUL BASIS

Social media providers and targeters are generally joint controllers for targeting: the targeter chooses the audience criteria and the message, the platform decides which data and criteria are available, so an Article 26 arrangement is required. Article 6(1)(b) cannot support online advertising; legitimate interests requires the three cumulative conditions, and consent is needed for tracking-based profiling and wherever Article 5(3) of the ePrivacy Directive applies to cookies. Telling users merely that data is used for advertising is not transparent enough, inferred special category data rarely benefits from an Article 9(2) exception, and targeting of vulnerable groups calls for a DPIA. Version 2.0 of 13 April 2021 is the final text after consultation; version 2.1 of 7 July 2021 only amended references.

Guidelines 01/2020 on processing personal data in the context of connected vehicles and mobility related applications

[23] · Guideline · 09 March 2021 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT CONSENT DPIA SECURITY

Most data processed in and around a connected vehicle is personal data, since it can be linked to the driver, owner or passengers, and Article 5(3) of the ePrivacy Directive applies to storing or accessing information on the vehicle, so consent is required unless the access is strictly necessary for a service the user requested. Location, biometric and offence-related data get special treatment: minimise location data, keep biometrics local and encrypted with a non-biometric alternative, and process offence-related data locally under the user's control. Manufacturers, service providers, insurers, dealers, fleet managers and telecom operators are addressed, with worked cases on pay-as-you-drive insurance, parking booking, eCall, accident research and vehicle theft. Version 2.0 of 9 March 2021 is final; prefer local processing and run a DPIA.

Guidelines 09/2020 on relevant and reasoned objection under Regulation 2016/679

[24] · Guideline · 09 March 2021

Guidelines on what makes an objection by a concerned authority relevant and reasoned under Article 4(24). Procedure between authorities.

Guidelines 06/2020 on the interplay of the Second Payment Services Directive and the GDPR

[25] · Guideline · 15 December 2020

Guidelines on the interplay between the Second Payment Services Directive and the GDPR: explicit consent under PSD2 is contractual, not GDPR consent, and silent party data has limits. Payments sector.

Guidelines 2/2020 on articles 46 (2) (a) and 46 (3) (b) of Regulation 2016/679 for transfers of personal data between EEA and non-EEA public authorities and bodies

[26] · Guideline · 15 December 2020

Guidelines on transfers between EEA and non-EEA public bodies under Article 46(2)(a) and 46(3)(b): what a legally binding instrument or administrative arrangement must contain. Public bodies.

Guidelines 4/2019 on Article 25 Data Protection by Design and by Default

[27] · Guideline · 20 October 2020 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT GOVERNANCE SECURITY

Article 25 obliges controllers to implement appropriate technical and organisational measures that embed each data protection principle effectively into processing, chosen with regard to the state of the art, cost, the nature, scope, context and purposes of processing and the risks, and to demonstrate effectiveness, for example through key performance indicators. By default only data necessary for each purpose may be processed, judged by amount, extent, storage period and accessibility. The obligation applies when the means are determined and throughout processing, including legacy systems, and processors and producers should support it. Version 2.0 of 20 October 2020 is final; failure to implement it affects fines under Article 83(4).

Guidelines 5/2019 on the criteria of the Right to be Forgotten in the search engines cases under the GDPR (part 1)

[28] · Guideline · 07 July 2020 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT RIGHTS

A data subject may ask a search engine provider to delist results returned for a search on their name on any of the six grounds in Article 17(1) GDPR, and the provider may refuse under the five exemptions in Article 17(3). Delisting removes the link from name-based results only; the content stays on the source website and the request does not erase it there. Search engine operators should test each request against the grounds and then the exemptions, and be able to demonstrate the balancing. Part 1 covers the grounds and exemptions; criteria for handling complaints about refusals are announced for a supplementary appendix.

Guidelines 05/2020 on consent under Regulation 2016/679

[29] · Guideline · 04 May 2020 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT CONSENT COOKIES TRACKING LAWFUL BASIS

Valid consent under Article 4(11) GDPR must be freely given, specific, informed and an unambiguous affirmative act: pre-ticked boxes, silence and scrolling do not count, and access to a service must not be made conditional on consent to cookies, so cookie walls fail the freely given test. The guidelines apply to every controller relying on Article 6(1)(a), with public authorities and employers warned that the imbalance of power usually rules consent out. Controllers should separate consent by purpose, keep records that show what was asked and when, and make withdrawal as easy as giving consent. The guidelines replace WP29 Guidelines WP259 rev.01.

Guidelines 03/2020 on the processing of data concerning health for the purpose of scientific research in the context of the COVID-19 outbreak

[30] · Guideline · 21 April 2020

Guidelines on processing health data for Covid-19 research: consent under Articles 6(1)(a) and 9(2)(a) can be the legal basis if it is freely given and can be withdrawn, national law under Articles 9(2)(i) and (j) with Article 89 safeguards is the other route, and transfers may use Article 49 derogations in the emergency. Historical; the general points are in the 2026 scientific research guidelines.

Guidelines 04/2020 on the use of location data and contact tracing tools in the context of the COVID-19 outbreak

[31] · Guideline · 21 April 2020

Guidelines on location data and contact tracing tools during the Covid-19 outbreak: voluntary use, no location tracking of individuals, proximity data only. Historical.

Guidelines 3/2019 on processing of personal data through video devices

[32] · Guideline · 30 January 2020 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT BIOMETRICS LAWFUL BASIS DPIA

Video surveillance falls under the GDPR whenever identifiable people are captured, and the household exemption does not cover a camera that films public space or an area open to an indefinite number of people. Public and private controllers must ground each camera in a lawful basis, usually legitimate interest backed by real and present threats or, for public bodies, a public-interest task, since Article 6(1)(f) is closed to authorities performing their tasks; consent cannot be inferred from entering a monitored area, and facial recognition that identifies people is biometric processing needing an Article 9(2) exception. Practitioners should post a layered notice at the entrance, keep retention to a few days unless longer is justified, and run a DPIA for large-scale systematic monitoring of publicly accessible areas.

Guidelines 3/2018 on the territorial scope of the GDPR (Article 3) - version adopted after public consultation

[33] · Guideline · 12 November 2019 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT GOVERNANCE

Article 3 GDPR is applied processing activity by processing activity, not to an organisation. Under Article 3(1) it reaches any processing carried out in the context of the activities of an EU establishment, wherever the processing happens, and a single employee with stable arrangements can be enough. Under Article 3(2) it reaches controllers and processors outside the EU that offer goods or services to people in the Union or monitor their behaviour, with mere website accessibility insufficient; those entities must generally appoint an Article 27 representative, who cannot be the DPO. Practitioners should map each processing activity against both criteria and name the representative in privacy notices.

Guidelines 2/2019 on the processing of personal data under Article 6(1)(b) GDPR in the context of the provision of online services to data subjects

[34] · Guideline · 16 October 2019 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT LAWFUL BASIS MARKETING

Article 6(1)(b) GDPR covers only processing that is objectively necessary to perform the contract with the data subject: writing a processing operation into the terms does not make it necessary, and a less intrusive way of delivering the service defeats the basis. For online service providers the guidelines rule out contractual necessity for behavioural advertising and service improvement metrics, treat fraud prevention as likely to exceed it, and allow personalisation only where it is integral to the service the user signed up for. Controllers should test each purpose separately against the contract, move purposes that fail to legitimate interests or consent, and record the assessment.

[37] · Guideline · 14 December 2018

Guidelines on accrediting certification bodies under Article 43, with Annex 1 setting the additional requirements beyond ISO/IEC 17065. For accreditation bodies and certification bodies.

Automated decision-making and profiling

[38] · Guideline · 25 May 2018 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT AI RIGHTS

Article 22(1) GDPR is a general prohibition on decisions based solely on automated processing, including profiling, that produce legal effects or similarly significantly affect a person; it lifts only where the decision is necessary for a contract, authorised by Union or Member State law, or based on explicit consent. Under the contract and consent exceptions the controller must provide human intervention that is meaningful rather than a token gesture, let the person express their view and contest the decision (for the legal-authorisation exception the law itself must lay down the safeguards), and explain the rationale and criteria in simple terms. Controllers should map each scoring or eligibility decision against Article 22 and run a DPIA where it applies.

Data Protection Officer

[39] · Guideline · 25 May 2018 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT GOVERNANCE

A DPO is mandatory for every public authority or body except courts acting judicially, and for any organisation whose core activities involve large-scale regular and systematic monitoring of data subjects or large-scale processing of special category or criminal conviction data. The DPO must have expert knowledge of data protection law, may not be instructed on how to perform the tasks or be dismissed or penalised for doing them, reports to the highest management level and cannot hold a role that decides the purposes and means of processing. A voluntary DPO carries the same obligations, and a group may share one DPO who is easily accessible from each establishment.

Data Protection impact assessments High risk processing

[40] · Guideline · 25 May 2018 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT DPIA

A DPIA is required where processing is likely to result in a high risk, and the guidelines give nine indicators: evaluation or scoring, automated decisions with legal or similar effect, systematic monitoring, sensitive or highly personal data, large scale, matching or combining datasets, vulnerable data subjects, innovative use of technology, and processing that prevents people exercising a right or using a service. As a rule of thumb, processing meeting two of the nine criteria calls for a DPIA, and a decision not to do one should be documented. Residual high risk must go to the supervisory authority for prior consultation, and the assessment is reviewed as processing changes.

Guidelines 2/2018 on derogations of Article 49 under Regulation 2016/679

[41] · Guideline · 25 May 2018 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT TRANSFERS

Article 49 derogations are exceptions to be interpreted restrictively so that the exception does not become the rule: an exporter must first look for an adequacy decision under Article 45, then appropriate safeguards under Article 46, and only then a derogation. The contract and legal claims derogations cover only occasional transfers, so a systematic flow within a stable business relationship cannot rest on them, and the compelling legitimate interests ground is a last resort limited to non-repetitive transfers of a limited number of data subjects, with safeguards and notification to the supervisory authority. Exporters should document why Articles 45 and 46 were unavailable before relying on a derogation.

Guidelines for identifying a controller or processor's lead supervisory authority, WP244 rev.01

[42] · Guideline · 25 May 2018 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT SUPERSEDED GOVERNANCE ENFORCEMENT

The one-stop-shop gives a controller or processor engaged in cross-border processing a single lead supervisory authority, the one for its main establishment: normally the place of central administration in the EU, unless decisions on the purposes and means are taken and implemented elsewhere. The GDPR does not permit forum shopping; a supervisory authority may rebut a claimed main establishment and require evidence of where decisions are actually taken, and a controller with no EU establishment gets no lead authority at all. Processors follow the controller's lead authority for the processing concerned. EDPB Guidelines 8/2022, version 2.0 adopted 28 March 2023, replaced them.

Guidelines on Personal data breach notification under Regulation 2016/679, WP250 rev.01

[43] · Guideline · 25 May 2018 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT SUPERSEDED BREACH SECURITY

A personal data breach can affect the confidentiality, integrity or availability of personal data, and not every security incident is one. A controller is aware once it has a reasonable degree of certainty that personal data have been compromised; it then has 72 hours where feasible to notify the supervisory authority unless the breach is unlikely to result in a risk, may notify in phases, and must communicate to data subjects without undue delay for high-risk breaches. Processors must notify the controller without undue delay, and every breach, notified or not, must be documented. The guidelines were replaced by EDPB Guidelines 9/2022, version 2.0 adopted 28 March 2023.

Guidelines on the right to data portability under Regulation 2016/679, WP242 rev.01

[44] · Guideline · 25 May 2018 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT RIGHTS

The right to data portability under Article 20 GDPR lets a person obtain, and move to another controller, the personal data they gave to a controller, provided the processing runs on consent or contract and by automated means. 'Provided' data includes what the person typed in and what the controller observed from their activity; profiles and other inferred data are outside the right. The format must be structured, commonly used and machine-readable, the export free and unobstructed, and the receiving controller needs its own lawful basis for third-party data. Practitioners should confirm the lawful basis of each data set before deciding what is in scope.

Right to data portability

[45] · Guideline · 25 May 2018 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT RIGHTS

Article 20 GDPR gives a data subject the right to receive the personal data they provided to a controller in a structured, commonly used and machine-readable format, and to have it transmitted directly to another controller where technically feasible. The right applies only where processing rests on consent or contract and is carried out by automated means; it covers data actively supplied and data observed from the person's use of the service, but not data the controller has inferred or derived. Exercising it triggers no erasure and must be free and unhindered. Controllers should map the data sets in scope and build an export path in advance.

Transparency

[46] · Guideline · 25 May 2018 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT TRANSPARENCY

Transparency under Articles 12 to 14 GDPR means information that is concise, transparent, intelligible and easily accessible, in clear and plain language: the reader should not have to seek it out, and qualifiers such as 'may', 'might', 'some' or 'often' should be avoided because they leave the reader unsure what actually happens. The obligation applies to every controller regardless of lawful basis and across the whole processing life cycle; Article 13 information is due when the data are obtained, Article 14 information within a month and earlier if the data are disclosed to a recipient. Layered online notices should put purposes, controller identity and rights in the first layer, and material changes must be actively communicated.

Article 29 Working Party - Guidelines on transparency under Regulation 2016/679

[47] · Guideline · 11 April 2018 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT TRANSPARENCY

Information given to data subjects under Articles 13 and 14 GDPR must be concise, transparent, intelligible and easily accessible, in clear and plain language that an average member of the intended audience understands; layered privacy statements online should put the highest-impact processing, purposes, controller identity and rights up front. Timing is fixed: at collection under Article 13, within one month under Article 14 and before any disclosure to a recipient. A material change to a notice, such as a new purpose, must be actively communicated; expecting people to check for updates is unfair. Every controller should audit its notices against these tests, whatever the lawful basis.

Recommendations 1/2025 on the 2027 WADA World Anti-Doping Code

[48] · Recommendation · 13 February 2025

Recommendations on the 2027 World Anti-Doping Code and its international standards, on the proportionality of athlete data processing and transfers. Sport governing bodies.

Recommendations 1/2022 on the Application for Approval and on the elements and principles to be found in Controller Binding Corporate Rules (Art. 47 GDPR)

[49] · Recommendation · 20 June 2023 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT TRANSFERS GOVERNANCE

A single standard application form and a referential of mandatory elements now govern approval of controller binding corporate rules under Article 47, replacing WP256 rev.01 and WP264. The recommendations apply to any group applying for BCR-C and to every existing BCR-C holder, who must align their rules as part of the 2024 annual update, generally without a new approval. Applicants submit one copy to the presumptive BCR lead covering structure, data flows, binding mechanism, training, audit and the DPO network, and map each element of the referential to the BCR text before filing.

Recommendations 01/2020 on measures that supplement transfer tools to ensure compliance with the EU level of protection of personal data

[50] · Recommendation · 18 June 2021 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT TRANSFERS

Data exporters must follow a six-step roadmap after Schrems II: know your transfers, identify the transfer tool, assess whether third-country law or practice undermines it, adopt supplementary measures where needed, complete procedural steps and re-evaluate at appropriate intervals. The assessment must rest on relevant, objective, reliable, verifiable and publicly available or otherwise accessible information; the absence of prior access requests is never decisive on its own. Annex 2 gives technical, contractual and organisational measures, with encryption and pseudonymisation under keys the importer cannot reach, and split or multi-party processing, as the effective technical use cases. Version 2.0 of 18 June 2021 is final and applies to controllers and processors acting as exporters, who should document every step as the transfer impact assessment.

Recommendations 02/2021 on the legal basis for the storage of credit card data for the sole purpose of facilitating further online transactions

[51] · Recommendation · 19 May 2021 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT LAWFUL BASIS CONSENT

Storing a customer's credit card data after a purchase, solely to make later purchases easier, can rest only on consent under Article 6(1)(a) GDPR. Contract performance does not apply because the transaction is complete, legal obligation is irrelevant, and legitimate interests fails the balancing test given the sensitivity of financial data and the customer's reasonable expectations. Consent must come from a clear affirmative act such as an unticked box, separately from the terms of service and never as a precondition of the purchase, and withdrawal must lead to deletion. Addressed to online goods and service providers in the EEA; apply it to every checkout that offers to remember a card.

Recommendations 01/2021 on the adequacy referential under the Law Enforcement Directive

[52] · Recommendation · 02 February 2021

Recommendations on the adequacy referential under the Law Enforcement Directive: what the Commission assesses before finding a third country adequate for police transfers. Police sector.

Recommendations 02/2020 on the European Essential Guarantees for surveillance measures

[53] · Recommendation · 10 November 2020 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT TRANSFERS

Four European Essential Guarantees define when third-country surveillance access to transferred data is compatible with EU fundamental rights: processing based on clear, precise and accessible rules; necessity and proportionality, with no generalised and indiscriminate access; an independent oversight mechanism with binding powers; and effective remedies before an independent body, including notification once it no longer jeopardises an investigation. Adopted on 10 November 2020, they update the WP29 working document WP237 of 2016 in light of Schrems II and ECtHR case law. Exporters apply them in step 3 of Recommendations 01/2020, and the Commission applies them in adequacy assessments under Article 45.

Recommendation 01/2019 on the draft list of the European Data Protection Supervisor regarding the processing operations subject to the requirement of a data protection impact assessment (Article 39.4 of Regulation (EU) 2018/1725)

[54] · Recommendation · 12 July 2019

Recommendation on the European Data Protection Supervisor's list of processing operations requiring a DPIA for EU institutions. EU institutions only.

Guidelines 04/2026 on the application of the power to impose administrative fines in relation to other corrective powers under the GDPR (version for public consultation)

[55] · Consultation version · 17 September 2026 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT CONSULTATION ENFORCEMENT

Authorities decide whether to fine in five steps: can the infringement be fined, can this party be fined, was it at least negligent, do the Article 83(2) factors make it minor, and would a fine be effective, proportionate and dissuasive. A minor infringement as a rule draws no fine; any other carries a strong presumption in favour of one, and legal advice rarely excuses negligence. Addressed to supervisory authorities; replaces the WP29 fines guidelines (WP253), complements Guidelines 04/2022 on calculating the amount, and sets which corrective measures a fine can be combined with. Adopted 17 September 2026, open for comment until 13 November 2026; keep evidence of remediation and cooperation, the factors that decide whether an infringement is minor.

Guidelines 02/2026 on anonymisation (version for public consultation)

[56] · Consultation version · 08 July 2026 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT CONSULTATION

Data is anonymous only when it no longer relates to an identified or identifiable person for the entity holding it, judged by content, purpose and effect; the test has three limbs, all of which must hold: no singling out of a record, no linking of records about the same person, and no inference of an attribute. The guidelines, which fold in the Court of Justice's September 2025 ruling in EDPS v SRB, allow a contextual assessment (what the actual recipients and reasonably likely third parties can do) or a simplified one applied uniformly. Consultation runs to 30 October 2026; treat every 'anonymised' export, training set or statistic against the three limbs now, and keep the assessment on file, since this is the standard supervisory authorities will apply once the text is final.

Guidelines 03/2026 on web scraping in the context of generative AI (version for public consultation)

[57] · Consultation version · 08 July 2026 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT CONSULTATION

Scraping the web for personal data to train or fine-tune a generative AI model is processing under the GDPR from the moment of collection, so the scraper needs a legal basis (in practice legitimate interests under the three-step test), purpose limitation and transparency, with the Article 14(5)(b) relief from individual notice only where informing people is impossible or disproportionate and public information is given instead. Controllers should scrape from reliable sources, respect machine-readable opt-outs, record timestamps and provenance, filter and validate data before training, and treat special category data as prohibited unless an Article 9(2) exception applies alongside the Article 6 basis. Consultation runs to 30 October 2026; read it with Opinion 28/2024 on AI models.

Template for personal data breach notification (version for public consultation)

[58] · Consultation version · 10 June 2026 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT CONSULTATION

A common EU template for notifying personal data breaches to supervisory authorities under Article 33, built for implementation in each authority's online tool: conditional sections that appear only when relevant, predefined answer values and tooltips, covering the nature of the breach, categories and numbers of people and records, likely consequences, measures taken, timing and reasons for any delay, and cross-border elements. Consultation ran 10 June to 5 August 2026; the Board will decide the timetable for authorities to adopt it. Map the incident intake form to its fields now so a notification can be assembled from the record rather than rewritten under the 72-hour clock.

Guidelines 1/2026 on processing of personal data for scientific research purposes (version for public consultation)

[59] · Consultation version · 15 April 2026 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT CONSULTATION

Six indicators decide whether an activity is scientific research (methodical approach, ethical standards, verifiability, independence, societal objective, scientific merit); commercial research qualifies if it is genuinely scientific. The main Article 6 bases are consent, legal obligation, public interest and legitimate interests, with broad consent allowed for defined research areas under extra safeguards, public interest where law provides for it, and legitimate interests weighted in research's favour; special categories need an Article 9(2) condition such as (j) with a legal basis in Union or national law. Further processing for research is presumed compatible under Article 5(1)(b) but still needs its own lawful basis, storage may be extended only for identified projects or a defined research area, and Article 89(1) safeguards (anonymise or pseudonymise where the purpose allows, ethics review, secure environments, privacy enhancing technologies) condition the derogations from erasure, objection and information duties. Adopted 15 April 2026 for consultation to 25 June 2026.

Template for Data Protection Impact Assessment (version for public consultation)

[60] · Consultation version · 14 April 2026 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT CONSULTATION

A harmonised DPIA report template with predefined fields and an explainer, adopted 10 March 2026 and out for consultation from 14 April to 9 June 2026, meant to structure and evidence the Article 35 assessment: description of the processing, necessity and proportionality, risks to individuals, measures, residual risk and consultation of the DPO and of data subjects. Use is not mandatory; after consultation each supervisory authority will adopt it either as its sole standard or as a meta-template that national formats must map to. Compare the site's DPIA tool field by field once the final version is published, and expect authorities to ask for reports in this shape.

Recommendations 1/2026 on the Application for Approval and on the elements and principles to be found in Processor Binding Corporate Rules (Art. 47 GDPR) (version for public consultation)

[61] · Consultation version · 15 January 2026 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT CONSULTATION

The application form, the elements and principles table and the background paper for processor binding corporate rules, replacing WP257 rev.01 and WP265: the same structure as Recommendations 1/2022 for controller BCRs, with the scope clarified (transfers from the processor to its own sub-processor members, not direct transfers from an external controller), full rather than summarised information to data subjects on their enforceable rights, a duty on importers to notify and, where grounds exist, challenge government access requests, and a reminder that approval does not assess supplementary measures, which each exporter still owes transfer by transfer. Adopted 15 January 2026 for consultation to 2 March 2026; groups with processor BCRs in progress should draft to the new table.

Recommendations 2/2025 on the legal basis for requiring the creation of user accounts on e-commerce websites (version for public consultation)

[62] · Consultation version · 03 December 2025 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT CONSULTATION

Making a customer create an account before buying rarely passes the Article 6(1)(b) necessity test: a one-off purchase needs only the data to execute the sale, so the account is necessary only for genuine subscriptions with recurrent authenticated interactions or offers restricted to a verified closed group. Legitimate interests fail for fraud prevention, loyalty and order tracking because less intrusive means exist, and consent can only carry optional account benefits kept separate from checkout. Offering a guest checkout beside the account is the design that satisfies Article 25, and dormant account data must be deleted under storage limitation. Adopted 3 December 2025 for consultation to 12 February 2026; retailers should add a guest path now.

Joint Guidelines of the EDPB and the European Commission on the interplay between the Digital Markets Act and the GDPR (version for public consultation)

[63] · Consultation version · 09 October 2025 CONSULTATION

Draft joint guidelines on how gatekeepers meet both the DMA and the GDPR when combining or cross-using personal data (Article 5(2) DMA), on data portability, app distribution and messaging interoperability. Addressed primarily to gatekeepers but also to their business users and end users; the cookie digest carries the entry. Consultation 9 October to 4 December 2025.

Guidelines 01/2025 on pseudonymisation (version for public consultation)

[64] · Consultation version · 16 January 2025 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT CONSULTATION

Pseudonymised data stays personal data for everyone who could re-attribute it with the separately held additional information, so pseudonymisation is a safeguard, not an exit from the GDPR. It works within a defined pseudonymisation domain where the keys, lookup tables and original data are kept apart under technical and organisational measures, and within that domain it reduces the impact of a breach (Article 32), supports minimisation and confidentiality by design (Article 25), strengthens a legitimate interest balancing, and can serve as a supplementary measure for transfers where the additional information stays out of the third country's reach. Adopted 16 January 2025 for consultation to 14 March 2025; no final version had been published by September 2026.

Guidelines 1/2024 on processing of personal data based on Article 6(1)(f) GDPR (version for public consultation)

[65] · Consultation version · 08 October 2024 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT CONSULTATION

Legitimate interests carry processing only when three cumulative conditions are met: an interest that is lawful, clearly articulated and real and present rather than speculative; processing that is necessary, meaning the interest cannot reasonably be achieved just as effectively by less intrusive means; and a balancing in which the person's interests, the sensitivity of the data, the context, vulnerable groups, reasonable expectations (which do not depend only on what the privacy notice said) and mitigating measures beyond the legal minimum are weighed. After an objection the controller must show compelling legitimate grounds, a higher bar. Worked contexts cover fraud prevention, direct marketing, information security and children; public authorities cannot use the basis for their tasks. Adopted 8 October 2024 for consultation to 20 November 2024; no final version had been published by September 2026, and the March 2026 one-stop-shop case digest applies the same test.

Statement 1/2026 of the EDPB on smart glasses

[66] · Statement · 13 October 2026 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT TRANSPARENCY LAWFUL BASIS BIOMETRICS

Smart glasses that record, store or analyse images or sound of identifiable people are subject to the GDPR, and the household exemption in Article 2(2)(c) is read narrowly: it does not cover posting recordings publicly on social media or professional, official or political use. Producers and providers of linked apps or AI services may be controllers or joint controllers and cannot leave transparency to the wearer; consent obtained after a recording is not valid, and legitimate interest needs a case-by-case balance that commercial reuse or AI training will rarely pass. Combine hard-to-disable recording indicators with other in-the-moment signals, process on the device with no persistent storage by default, and blur or pseudonymise bystanders.

Statement 2/2025 on the implementation of the PNR Directive in light of CJEU Judgment C-817/19

[67] · Statement · 14 March 2025

Statement on how Member States should implement the Passenger Name Record Directive after the Court of Justice's judgment in C-817/19: no general retention beyond the initial six months, and after that only for records with an objective link to the Directive's purposes. Air travel and law enforcement.

Statement 1/2025 on Age Assurance

[68] · Statement · 12 February 2025 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT CHILDREN BIOMETRICS LAWFUL BASIS

Age assurance must respect ten principles, among them a risk-based assessment of proportionality, purpose limitation and data minimisation, effectiveness, lawfulness, fairness and transparency, data protection by design and by default, security and accountability. The statement applies to service providers and third parties involved in age assurance, and requires them to establish a lawful basis under Article 6, choose the least intrusive method and collect only the age attributes strictly necessary, for instance an over or under threshold signal rather than a date of birth. Map any age gate against the ten principles and record the proportionality assessment.

Statement on the implications of the CJEU judgment C-817/19 on the use of PNR in Member States

[69] · Statement · 13 December 2022

Statement on the Court of Justice's PNR judgment (C-817/19) and its consequences for national implementation. Air travel and law enforcement.

Statement 01/2022 on the announcement of an agreement in principle on a new Trans-Atlantic Data Privacy Framework

[70] · Statement · 06 April 2022 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT HISTORICAL TRANSFERS

The political agreement in principle announced on 25 March 2022 was a positive first step but did not constitute a legal framework on which exporters could base transfers to the United States, so controllers and processors had to continue complying with the CJEU's Schrems II judgment of 16 July 2020. The EDPB announced it would examine whether US reforms limit national security collection to what is strictly necessary and proportionate, whether the redress mechanism gives an effective remedy with binding decisions, and whether judicial review of that body exists. The statement was overtaken by Opinion 5/2023 and by the EU-US Data Privacy Framework adequacy decision of 10 July 2023.

Statement 04/2021 on international agreements including transfers

[71] · Statement · 13 April 2021 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT TRANSFERS GOVERNANCE

Member States should review international agreements involving transfers of personal data that were concluded before 24 May 2016 (GDPR) or 6 May 2016 (LED), in fields such as taxation, social security, mutual legal assistance and police cooperation, and align them with Chapter V GDPR, the LED and the Schrems II judgment of 16 July 2020. The statement points to Guidelines 2/2020 on transfers between EEA and non-EEA public authorities for the safeguards required in legally binding instruments, and offers the assistance of the national supervisory authorities. Public-sector practitioners should inventory such agreements and check that each carries enforceable rights and effective remedies.

Statement on the Court of Justice of the European Union Judgment in Case C-311/18 - Data Protection Commissioner v Facebook Ireland and Maximillian Schrems

[75] · Statement · 17 July 2020 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT HISTORICAL TRANSFERS

The Court's invalidation of the Privacy Shield in Case C-311/18 is welcomed as confirming that a level of protection essentially equivalent to the GDPR is required for every transfer. Standard contractual clauses remain valid, but exporter and importer must assess in advance whether the destination country's law allows that level of protection and, where it does not, add safeguards or suspend the transfer or terminate the clauses; supervisory authorities can suspend transfers where no alternative protection exists. Issued on 17 July 2020 as the first EDPB reaction, it calls for a complete EU-US framework and promises further guidance, which followed as the FAQ of 24 July 2020 and Recommendations 01/2020.

Statement on privacy implications of mergers

[80] · Statement · 19 February 2020

Statement prompted by Google's planned acquisition of Fitbit: combining sensitive personal data in a major tech company carries high risk, the parties must assess and mitigate the privacy implications before notifying the merger, and the Board stands ready to advise the Commission. Policy position.

Statement 2/2019 on the use of personal data in the course of political campaigns

[81] · Statement · 13 March 2019 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT HISTORICAL MARKETING LAWFUL BASIS

Ahead of the 2019 European Parliament elections the Board set out how the GDPR applies to political parties, coalitions and candidates that profile and target voters. Political opinions are special category data whose processing is prohibited unless a narrow condition such as explicit consent applies; data people have made public stays subject to the transparency, purpose and lawfulness rules; and profiling tied to targeted campaign messaging can produce similarly significant effects, so it is in principle lawful only with valid explicit consent, and voters must be told why they receive a message. Campaign data teams should treat voter profiling as needing explicit consent and explain targeting to recipients.

Statement of the EDPB on the data protection impacts of economic concentration

[82] · Statement · 27 August 2018

Statement that economic concentration in data-driven markets has data protection impacts that competition review should take into account. Policy position.

Opinion 28/2024 on certain data protection aspects related to the processing of personal data in the context of AI models

[140] · Opinion of the Board · 18 December 2024 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT AI LAWFUL BASIS

AI models trained on personal data are not anonymous in all cases; anonymity requires that the likelihood of extracting personal data from the model, directly or through queries, is insignificant, assessed case by case and documented. Legitimate interest can ground development and deployment only where the three-step test is met: a real and lawful interest, necessity with no less intrusive alternative, and a balancing that weighs data subjects' reasonable expectations and mitigating measures. Unlawful processing in development can affect later deployment unless the model is properly anonymised, and a deploying controller must assess how the model was built. Document anonymity testing and the legitimate interest assessment for every model.

Opinion 22/2024 on certain obligations following from the reliance on processor(s) and sub-processor(s)

[146] · Opinion of the Board · 09 October 2024 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT CONTROLLER PROCESSOR TRANSFERS GOVERNANCE

Controllers must have the name, address and contact person of every processor and sub-processor in the chain readily available at all times, and must verify that each provides sufficient guarantees, with the extent of verification scaling with the risk of the processing. Processors must flow the same data protection obligations down to sub-processors, though the contract wording need not be identical, and the controller need not systematically review sub-processing contracts; it decides case by case whether doing so is needed for accountability. The controller remains responsible for transfers made by processors and sub-processors and needs the transfer mapping and legal grounds documented. Requested by the Danish supervisory authority; use it to rebuild sub-processor inventories and due diligence.

Opinion 11/2024 on the use of facial recognition to streamline airport passengers' flow (compatibility with Articles 5(1)(e) and(f), 25 and 32 GDPR)

[159] · Opinion of the Board · 24 May 2024 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT BIOMETRICS SECURITY

Facial recognition to speed passengers through airport checkpoints is compatible with Articles 5(1)(e), 5(1)(f), 25 and 32 GDPR only where the biometric template stays under the passenger's control: stored solely on the passenger's device, or stored centrally at the airport encrypted with a key held only by the passenger. Central databases under airport operator control and cloud storage under airline control cannot satisfy data protection by design and would not meet the security requirements with the measures described, and the cloud scenario also fails storage limitation. Requested by the French supervisory authority and adopted 23 May 2024, it guides airport operators, airlines and their authorities; any biometric passenger flow project must be built around on-device storage or passenger-held keys.

Opinion 08/2024 on Valid Consent in the Context of Consent or Pay Models Implemented by Large Online Platforms

[162] · Opinion of the Board · 17 April 2024 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT CONSENT COOKIES TRACKING MARKETING

Large online platforms that offer users only a choice between consenting to behavioural advertising or paying a fee will, in most cases, not obtain valid consent. Consent must be freely given, so platforms should consider offering a further free alternative without behavioural advertising, for instance contextual advertising using less or no personal data, and must assess detriment, lock-in effects, the power imbalance flowing from market position and whether any fee is appropriate at all; the controller bears the burden of demonstrating all of this. Requested by the Dutch, Norwegian and Hamburg authorities and adopted 17 April 2024, with an editorial corrigendum in October 2024, it addresses large online platforms only.

Opinion 04/2024 on the notion of main establishment of a controller in the Union under Art. 4.16(a) GDPR

[164] · Opinion of the Board · 13 February 2024

Opinion on when a controller has a main establishment in the Union under Article 4(16)(a): the place of central administration counts only if it actually takes the decisions on purposes and means, otherwise the Union establishment that does take them is the main establishment, and where no Union establishment takes them the one-stop-shop does not apply. Procedural, for authorities deciding competence.

Opinion 5/2019 on the interplay between the ePrivacy Directive and the GDPR, in particular regarding the competence, tasks and powers of data protection authorities

[314] · Opinion of the Board · 12 March 2019 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT COOKIES TRACKING ENFORCEMENT

Processing such as the placing of cookies can fall under both the ePrivacy Directive and the GDPR simultaneously; where the ePrivacy Directive contains a specific rule it takes precedence as lex specialis, and everything it does not specifically govern remains subject to the GDPR. A data protection authority keeps its full GDPR competence over such processing, but it can enforce the ePrivacy rules themselves only where national law makes it the competent body, and any GDPR decision must rest on GDPR grounds, with ePrivacy breaches usable as factual elements. Practitioners should expect DPAs to weigh cookie consent failures when assessing GDPR lawfulness.

Binding Decision 1/2026 on the dispute submitted by the Belgian SA on Vlaamse Radio-en Televisieomroeporganisatie (VRT) (Art. 65 GDPR)

[347] · EDPB Binding Decisions · 28 May 2026

Article 65 decision on whether a complaint against the Flemish broadcaster VRT should be dismissed as an abuse of the right to complain and to mandate a not-for-profit body. Procedural: it settles when authorities may reject complaints, not any substantive processing question.

Urgent Binding Decision 01/2023 requested by the Norwegian SA for the ordering of final measures regarding Meta Platforms Ireland Ltd (Art. 66(2) GDPR)

[348] · EDPB Binding Decisions · 27 October 2023 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT LAWFUL BASIS MARKETING ENFORCEMENT

Meta Platforms Ireland infringed Article 6(1) GDPR by continuing to process personal data for behavioural advertising on Facebook and Instagram under Article 6(1)(b) after the Irish SA's decisions of 31 December 2022, and by switching to Article 6(1)(f) on 5 April 2023 without a valid legal basis. The EDPB instructed the Irish SA to order Meta to cease that processing across the entire EEA, extending the Norwegian SA's provisional ban of 14 July 2023; Meta's consent proposal was not assessed. For any controller the lesson is that neither contract nor legitimate interest carries behavioural advertising built on observed behaviour, location and ad interactions, which leaves consent as the basis to design for.

Binding Decision 2/2023 on the dispute submitted by the Irish SA regarding TikTok Technology Limited (Art. 65 GDPR)

[349] · EDPB Binding Decisions · 02 August 2023 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT CHILDREN DPIA ENFORCEMENT

TikTok's public-by-default settings for users aged 13 to 17 between 31 July and 31 December 2020 infringed Articles 25(1), 25(2), 5(1)(c), 24(1), 13(1)(e) and 12(1) GDPR, and the EDPB additionally instructed the Irish SA to find an infringement of the fairness principle in Article 5(1)(a) because the registration and video-posting pop-ups nudged children towards public accounts. The decision binds the Irish SA and the objecting authorities and is the EDPB's clearest statement that deceptive interface design is unfair processing. Audit defaults and consent flows for child users, and expect fairness, not only transparency, to be assessed.

Binding Decision 1/2023 on the dispute submitted by the Irish SA on data transfers by Meta Platforms Ireland Limited for its Facebook service (Art. 65 GDPR)

[350] · EDPB Binding Decisions · 13 April 2023 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT TRANSFERS ENFORCEMENT

Meta Platforms Ireland infringed Article 46(1) GDPR by transferring EU/EEA Facebook user data to the United States on standard contractual clauses that could not compensate for the deficiencies in US law identified by the CJEU. The EDPB instructed the Irish SA to add an administrative fine to the proposed suspension order and to order Meta to bring processing into compliance, including ceasing unlawful processing of the transferred data, in an inquiry opened on 28 August 2020. The decision binds the Irish SA and shows that a transfer impact assessment concluding that supplementary measures are ineffective must lead to suspension, not continued transfer.

Binding Decision 3/2022 on the dispute submitted by the Irish SA on Meta Platforms Ireland Limited and its Facebook service (Art. 65 GDPR)

[351] · EDPB Binding Decisions · 05 December 2022 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT LAWFUL BASIS MARKETING ENFORCEMENT

Meta Platforms Ireland cannot rely on Article 6(1)(b) GDPR for behavioural advertising on Facebook, because such advertising is objectively not necessary for the performance of the contract and users cannot be taken to expect it from a brief mention in the terms. The EDPB also confirmed infringements of Articles 12 and 13 for unclear information on processing operations and legal bases, found an additional breach of the fairness principle in Article 5(1)(a) for presenting the service in a misleading way that left users with a take-it-or-leave-it choice, instructed the Irish SA to impose a fine and required compliance within three months of the final decision. Adopted on 5 December 2022, the decision sets the position later enforced EEA-wide in Urgent Binding Decision 01/2023.

Binding Decision 4/2022 on the dispute submitted by the Irish SA on Meta Platforms Ireland Limited and its Instagram service (Art. 65 GDPR)

[352] · EDPB Binding Decisions · 05 December 2022 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT LAWFUL BASIS MARKETING ENFORCEMENT

Meta Platforms Ireland cannot rely on Article 6(1)(b) GDPR for behavioural advertising on Instagram: the processing is not a core part of the contract, is objectively unnecessary for its performance and falls outside users' reasonable expectations under the Terms of Use. The EDPB upheld infringements of Articles 5(1)(a), 12(1) and 13(1)(c) for failing to give meaningful information on processing operations and legal bases, found an additional breach of the fairness principle for presenting the service in a misleading way that left users with an accept-or-delete choice, instructed the Irish SA to impose a fine and set a three-month compliance deadline. Adopted on 5 December 2022, it mirrors Binding Decision 3/2022 on Facebook, and both were extended EEA-wide by Urgent Binding Decision 01/2023.

Binding Decision 5/2022 on the dispute submitted by the Irish SA regarding WhatsApp Ireland Limited (Art. 65 GDPR)

[353] · EDPB Binding Decisions · 05 December 2022 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT LAWFUL BASIS TRANSPARENCY ENFORCEMENT

WhatsApp Ireland cannot rely on Article 6(1)(b) GDPR to process personal data for service improvement and security features, because processing must be objectively necessary and integral to the contracted service, judged from both the controller's and a reasonable user's perspective, and a controller cannot pick a basis that serves its commercial interests at the expense of data subject protection. The EDPB instructed the Irish SA to record the Article 5(1)(a) and 6(1) infringement and impose an administrative fine; the separate order to bring WhatsApp's privacy policy into compliance with Articles 12(1) and 13(1)(c) was made in the EDPB's earlier 2021 binding decision on WhatsApp, not this one. Any controller citing contract for improvement or analytics processing should re-evaluate that basis.

Binding Decision 2/2022 on the dispute arisen on the draft decision of the Irish Supervisory Authority regarding Meta Platforms Ireland Limited (Instagram) under Article 65(1)(a) GDPR

[354] · EDPB Binding Decisions · 28 July 2022

Article 65 decision in the Irish authority's Meta (Instagram) inquiry into children's data: contact details of child users with business accounts were published by default and children's accounts were public by default, breaching Articles 5(1)(c), 6(1), 12(1), 24, 25 and 35 among others; the Board directed a higher fine (EUR 405 million in the final decision). Enforcement history; the substantive points on default settings and children are in the Article 25 guidance and Guidelines 05/2020.

Decision 01/2022 on the dispute arisen on the draft decision of the French Supervisory Authority regarding Accor SA under Article 65(1)(a) GDPR

[355] · EDPB Binding Decisions · 15 June 2022

Article 65 decision on the French authority's Accor case, requiring the fine to be reassessed for failures on objections to direct marketing, access requests, information and security. Enforcement history.

Binding decision 1/2021 on the dispute arisen on the draft decision of the Irish Supervisory Authority regarding WhatsApp Ireland under Article 65(1)(a) GDPR

[356] · EDPB Binding Decisions · 28 July 2021 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT HISTORICAL TRANSPARENCY ENFORCEMENT

WhatsApp Ireland's privacy notices infringed the transparency duties in Articles 12 to 14 GDPR, and the EDPB, resolving objections from several supervisory authorities, instructed the Irish Data Protection Commission to add an infringement of Article 13(1)(d) because legitimate interests were not tied to specific processing operations, to treat the table of lossy hashes of non-users' phone numbers held with associated users' numbers as personal data and extend the Article 14 infringement to it, and to reassess the fine upwards from the 30 to 50 million euro range in its draft. The decision binds the Irish authority and the concerned supervisory authorities; WhatsApp Ireland is bound by the Irish final decision adopted on its basis. Read it as the benchmark for how granular a legitimate-interests description and a non-user notice must be.

Urgent Binding Decision 01/2021 on the request under Article 66(2) GDPR from the Hamburg (German) Supervisory Authority for ordering the adoption of final measures regarding Facebook Ireland Limited

[357] · EDPB Binding Decisions · 12 July 2021

Urgent binding decision refusing the Hamburg authority's request for final measures against Facebook over WhatsApp data sharing, while asking the Irish authority to investigate. Procedural precedent on Article 66 urgency.

[358] · EDPB Binding Decisions · 09 November 2020

The Board's first Article 65 decision, on the Irish authority's Twitter breach notification case, directing a higher fine. Enforcement history; the substantive point on the 72-hour clock is in Guidelines 9/2022.

EDPB-EDPS Joint Opinion 4/2026 on the Proposal for a Cybersecurity Act 2 and the Proposal on amendments to the NIS 2 Directive

[359] · Legislative opinion · 19 March 2026 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT SECURITY BREACH

The EDPB and EDPS back a single entry point for notifying personal data breaches alongside NIS 2 incident reports, support classifying European Digital Identity and Business Wallet providers as essential entities, and welcome supply chain measures aimed at non-technical risks. They ask legislators to spell out any large-scale personal data processing by ENISA in the basic act, to require EDPB consultation before certification schemes on security of processing are adopted, to keep certification controls configurable so they respect data minimisation, and to define safeguards for the new ransomware incident reporting, including whether a ransom was paid. NIS 2 operators should plan for combined incident and breach reporting.

EDPB-EDPS Joint Opinion 3/2026 on the Proposal for a European Biotech Act

EDPB-EDPS Joint opinion 2/2026 on the Proposal for a Regulation as regards the simplification of the digital legislative framework (Digital Omnibus)

[361] · Legislative opinion · 11 February 2026 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT BREACH AI COOKIES TRACKING

The EDPB and EDPS reject the narrowed definition of personal data in Article 4(1) and the new Article 41a on pseudonymisation, insist Article 22 stays a prohibition in principle on solely automated decisions, and accept legitimate interest for AI only with a mandatory three-step test, an unconditional right to object and enhanced transparency. They support raising the breach notification threshold to breaches likely to result in high risk, extending the deadline from 72 to 96 hours, the six-month bar on repeat consent requests and machine-readable consent signals, but warn that splitting the terminal equipment rules between the GDPR (personal data) and the ePrivacy Directive (other data) creates legal uncertainty and must not lower protection, and want the EDPB rather than the Commission to own DPIA lists and breach templates. Current GDPR obligations stand while negotiation continues.

EDPB-EDPS Joint opinion 1/2026 on the Proposal for a Regulation as regards the simplification of the implementation of harmonised rules on artificial intelligence (Digital Omnibus on AI)

[362] · Legislative opinion · 21 January 2026 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT AI GOVERNANCE

The EDPB and EDPS accept that postponing high-risk AI obligations from 2 August 2026 to no later than 2 December 2027 (Annex III) and from 2 August 2027 to no later than 2 August 2028 (Annex I) has partly objective causes but ask legislators to consider keeping the current dates for certain duties such as transparency, retain AI literacy obligations for providers and deployers, and keep registration of Annex III systems that providers self-exempt. They support bias detection with special category data in all AI systems only under strict necessity, with data protection authorities' independence and powers preserved, involved in EU-level sandboxes and unhindered by market surveillance single points of contact. Providers should not treat the delay as settled.

EDPB-EDPS Joint Opinion 01/2025 on the Proposal for a Regulation on simplification measures for SMEs and SMCs, in particular the record-keeping obligation under Art. 30(5) GDPR

[363] · Legislative opinion · 09 July 2025 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT GOVERNANCE CONTROLLER PROCESSOR

The Commission's proposal of 21 May 2025 would raise the Article 30(5) record-keeping exemption from fewer than 250 employees to fewer than 750, drop the trigger for special category and criminal data, and keep records only for processing likely to result in high risk, covering an estimated 38,000 SMCs. The EDPB and EDPS accept the aim, note the missing fundamental rights assessment and ask for clarifications: recitals confirming that records are needed only for the high-risk activities themselves, that Article 9(2)(b) employment processing is in principle not high risk and that public authorities stay excluded, and a reference in Article 30(5) itself to the formal SME and SMC definitions. Until adoption, the 250-employee rule applies.

[370] · Legislative opinion · 18 June 2021 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT HISTORICAL AI BIOMETRICS

The EDPB and EDPS welcome the risk-based approach of the AI Act proposal but call for a general ban on any use of AI for automated recognition of human features in publicly accessible spaces, a ban on social scoring by private as well as public actors, and a prohibition on inferring emotions except in narrowly regulated cases. They ask that GDPR compliance be a precondition for placing systems on the market and that data protection authorities be the national supervisory authorities. Addressed to the co-legislators in June 2021, it is a historical position; read it alongside the adopted AI Act to see which asks were taken up.

EDPB-EDPS Joint Opinion 1/2021 on standard contractual clauses between controllers and processors

[374] · Legislative opinion · 14 January 2021 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT HISTORICAL CONTROLLER PROCESSOR

The Commission's draft standard contractual clauses for Article 28 contracts are welcomed as a strong accountability tool, subject to amendments: the scope must state clearly whether the clauses apply to processors outside the EU and how they interact with Chapter V transfer clauses, the docking clause needs a procedure for new parties, the controller and not the processor must choose the auditor, cost allocation should be deleted, and the annexes must set out each party's responsibilities with absolute clarity. Addressed to the Commission in January 2021 before it adopted the clauses. When drafting a processing agreement on the Commission's clauses, give these points the most care.

EDPB-EDPS Joint Opinion 2/2021 on standard contractual clauses for the transfer of personal data to third countries

[375] · Legislative opinion · 14 January 2021 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT HISTORICAL TRANSFERS

The draft Article 46 SCCs reinforce protection for data subjects through four modules, a docking clause and clauses on third-country law and government access requests, but the EDPB and EDPS require changes: the assessment of third-country law must rest on objective factors rather than the likelihood of access or the absence of past requests, notification of access requests must precede any response, the processor-to-controller module needs the Article 28 processor obligations and the processor-to-processor module must reflect Article 28(4), and the Commission should clarify that importers already subject to the GDPR under Article 3(2) fall outside the decision. The SCCs must be used with Recommendations 01/2020 on supplementary measures. Addressed to the Commission in January 2021; the transfer impact assessment stays with the exporter.

Report of the work undertaken by the ChatGPT Taskforce

[379] · Task force report · 24 May 2024 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT HISTORICAL AI LAWFUL BASIS ENFORCEMENT

The taskforce, set up on 13 April 2023 to coordinate national investigations into OpenAI while it had no EU establishment, records preliminary common views: web scraping for training, pre-processing, training, prompts and outputs each need a lawful basis, with OpenAI relying on legitimate interests; terms of service cannot shift GDPR responsibility to users; transparency, accuracy of probabilistic output and data subject rights must be handled by design, and technical complexity does not excuse non-compliance. OpenAI established an EU presence on 15 February 2024, bringing future cross-border processing under the one-stop-shop. Read it as the authorities' checklist for any generative AI service; the views were preliminary as of 23 May 2024.

Report of the work undertaken by the supervisory authorities within the 101 Taskforce

[380] · Task force report · 19 April 2023 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT HISTORICAL TRANSFERS COOKIES TRACKING CONTROLLER PROCESSOR

Supervisory authorities handling the 101 complaints filed on 17 August 2020 about Google Analytics and Facebook Business Tools agreed that transfers relying on the invalidated Privacy Shield after 16 July 2020 breached Chapter V, that standard contractual clauses need supplementary measures addressing the deficiencies the CJEU identified, that encryption fails where the importer holds the keys, that anonymisation after transfer is too late, and that a website operator choosing such a tool is a controller. By March 2023 eight authorities had issued decisions. Since 10 July 2023 the EU-US adequacy decision covers transfers to DPF-certified recipients, so the report now matters mainly for non-certified importers and for the controller analysis.

Report of the work undertaken by the Cookie Banner Taskforce

[381] · Task force report · 18 January 2023 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT COOKIES TRACKING CONSENT

Supervisory authorities agreed a minimum common position on cookie banners: a vast majority hold that no reject option on any layer where consent is sought means no valid consent, pre-ticked boxes are invalid, a reject option hidden as a low-prominence text link is not equivalent to the accept button, deceptive colours and contrast are assessed case by case with unreadable text manifestly non-compliant, cookies claimed as essential must be shown to be so, and withdrawal must be as easy as consent without mandating a specific icon. Where Article 5(3) ePrivacy is breached, subsequent GDPR processing cannot be compliant. The positions apply on top of national ePrivacy law; test each banner against them before relying on the consent.

Coordinated Enforcement Action, implementation of the right to erasure by controllers

[382] · Coordinated Enforcement Framework · 18 February 2026 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT RIGHTS ENFORCEMENT

Across 32 supervisory authorities and 764 controllers surveyed, erasure compliance is mostly rated average and fails in seven recurring ways: missing internal procedures (flagged by 17 authorities), untrained staff, thin privacy notice information (13 authorities), blanket use of Article 17(3) exceptions without documented case-by-case assessment, retention periods that controllers struggle to define per purpose (one applied the longest period to everything), no method for erasure in back-ups, and anonymisation used as a substitute for deletion. Nine authorities opened or continued formal investigations. Controllers should adopt a written erasure procedure with owners and deadlines, a data deletion matrix cross-referencing data types and retention periods, a back-up erasure method, and documented reasoning for every refusal.

Coordinated Enforcement Action, implementation of the right of access by controllers

[383] · Coordinated Enforcement Framework · 20 January 2025 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT RIGHTS ENFORCEMENT

Thirty supervisory authorities examined how 1,185 controllers, from SMEs to large companies and public bodies, implement the right of access; two-thirds of participating authorities rated compliance as average to high, and larger organisations and those receiving more requests performed better. The report identifies recurring shortcomings: no documented internal procedure, inconsistent or excessive reading of the limitations, automatic reliance on exceptions, excessive formal requirements and identity checks, and limited awareness of Guidelines 01/2022. It closes with non-binding recommendations for controllers and authorities. Benchmark the access procedure against the challenges it lists and align it with Guidelines 01/2022.

Coordinated Enforcement Action, Designation and Position of Data Protection Officers

[384] · Coordinated Enforcement Framework · 17 January 2024 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT GOVERNANCE

The second coordinated enforcement action, run by 25 supervisory authorities across the EEA in 2023 with over 17,000 replies, finds that most DPOs report the skills, training, clearly defined tasks and independence that Articles 37 to 39 require, but identifies organisations that fail to designate a DPO where mandatory, under-resource the role, assign tasks not aligned with the GDPR or compromise independence through reporting lines. The report addresses supervisory authorities, controllers and processors, and signals awareness-raising and enforcement on these points. Check DPO designation, resourcing, reporting line and task list against the findings, and give the DPO time and budget to keep knowledge current.

Personal data may flow from the EEA to a US company without further safeguards only while that company holds an active certification on the Data Privacy Framework List kept by the US Department of Commerce, and only companies under FTC or Department of Transportation jurisdiction can self-certify. Exporters must check the list before each transfer, fall back on standard contractual clauses or binding corporate rules if certification lapses, confirm HR Data coverage and cooperation with EU authorities before sending employee data, and still sign an Article 28 agreement with any certified processor. Version 2.0, adopted 15 January 2026, replaces version 1.0 of July 2024.

Information Note on the Data Privacy Framework redress mechanism for national security purposes

[393] · Other guidance · 24 April 2024 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT TRANSFERS RIGHTS

Individuals in the EU and EEA who believe their personal data transferred to the United States was unlawfully collected or processed by US national security authorities can complain through the redress mechanism created by Executive Order 14086, whatever transfer tool was used, for data transmitted after 10 July 2023: the complaint goes to their national data protection authority, which checks it and passes it via the EDPB Secretariat to the US Office of the Director of National Intelligence's Civil Liberties Protection Officer, with a right of appeal to the Data Protection Review Court within 60 days. Complaints use the EDPB template complaint form for the CLPO, and the note sits alongside rules of procedure for the mechanism and for the informal panel of EU data protection authorities that handles them. Controllers transferring data to the US under any tool should reference the mechanism in their transfer documentation and privacy notices.

From 1 January 2021 the UK is a third country, but under the EU-UK Trade and Cooperation Agreement transfers to UK entities are not treated as third-country transfers for an interim period ending no later than 30 June 2021, provided the UK data protection regime stays in place. Exporters should use the period to put Article 46 tools in place (standard contractual clauses, binding corporate rules, codes of conduct), consider supplementary measures, and update records and privacy notices; groups with the ICO as BCR lead authority need a new EEA lead. Addressed to GDPR controllers and processors; historical now that the interim period has ended and UK adequacy applies.

With the transition period ending on 31 December 2020 and no adequacy decision in place, transfers of personal data to the UK fall under Chapter V GDPR from 1 January 2021: exporters need standard contractual clauses, binding corporate rules or another Article 46 safeguard, plus supplementary measures where Recommendations 01/2020 require them, and Article 49 derogations are exceptional and read restrictively. Controllers and processors must update records of processing and privacy notices, and groups with the ICO as BCR lead authority must appoint a new EEA lead. Superseded on 13 January 2021 by the updated information note reflecting the interim provision of the EU-UK Trade and Cooperation Agreement.

Article 49 derogations are available but cannot become the rule, and an exporter that finds no adequate safeguards must suspend the transfer or, if it intends to keep transferring, notify its supervisory authority. Addressed to controllers and processors exporting data. The guidance on supplementary measures it promised became Recommendations 01/2020, which now carries the operational detail.

Position Paper on the derogations from the obligation to maintain records of processing activities pursuant to Article 30(5) GDPR

[407] · Other guidance · 19 April 2018 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT GOVERNANCE

Article 30(5) GDPR exempts organisations with fewer than 250 employees from keeping records of processing activities, but the exemption falls away if the processing is likely to result in a risk to data subjects, is not occasional, or includes special category or criminal conviction data. The WP29 reads these three conditions as alternatives: any one of them alone triggers the record-keeping duty. The duty covers only the processing that meets a condition, so a small organisation that regularly processes employee data must record that processing while occasional, low-risk activities stay outside. Small organisations should treat core processing as non-occasional and keep a record rather than rely on headcount.

Most cases ended in reprimands, compliance or erasure orders or amicable settlement, with fines rare. One-Stop-Shop case digest on the legal basis of "legitimate interest"

Supervisory authorities applying the Article 6(1)(f) three-step test in 67 decisions between December 2018 and June 2025 (62 one-stop-shop decisions and 5 EDPB binding decisions) accepted commercial interests only when stated precisely, frequently failed controllers at the necessity stage where a less intrusive design existed, and read data subjects' interests and reasonable expectations broadly. The common infringements were no documented assessment before processing began, vague interests such as measuring content performance, retroactive reliance on legitimate interest to keep data collected without a legal basis, and transparency gaps that stopped people objecting. Controllers relying on legitimate interest should write the assessment first, name the interest specifically and disclose it. One-Stop-Shop case digest on Security of Processing and Data Breach Notification

[428] · Support Pool of Experts · 18 January 2024 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT BREACH SECURITY ENFORCEMENT

Ninety final one-stop-shop decisions adopted between January 2019 and June 2023 show how supervisory authorities apply Articles 32, 33 and 34: a breach occurring does not by itself prove that security measures were inappropriate (a point the digest draws from the Advocate General's opinion in C-340/21), and authorities assess encryption, access controls, password policies and logging case by case across external attacks, weak internal practices and human error. Each notifiable breach (Article 33(1): any breach unless it is unlikely to result in a risk) must be notified separately even if the controller thinks it linked to others, breach documentation under Article 33(5) must be detailed enough for the authority to verify compliance, and the risk assessment decides whether affected individuals must be informed. Prepared by an external expert under the Support Pool of Experts programme; use it to calibrate breach severity and notification decisions against decided cases.

Study on the secondary use of personal data in the context of scientific research

[431] · Legal study by external providers · 03 April 2025 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT LAWFUL BASIS CONSENT OTHER

Member States apply no uniform approach to the secondary use of personal data for scientific research: the GDPR does not define scientific research, national definitions and the choice between consent, public task and legitimate interests diverge, and views differ on whether a fresh legal basis is needed for secondary use. The study, commissioned by the EDPB from external researchers with substantive input from 18 countries, concludes that a legal basis is required for secondary use and recommends EDPB guidelines, codes of conduct and clarification of public interest under Article 9(2). Brazil's 2018 General Data Protection Law mirrors the GDPR and its authority ANPD became independent by 2022, but national security, public security, defence and criminal prosecution fall outside that law, judicial orders are required under the Civil Rights Framework for the Internet, and comprehensive data protection rules for security-related access are still lacking, with the judiciary and legislature as the main oversight bodies. Opinion 28/2025 regarding the European Commission Draft Implementing Decision pursuant to Regulation (EU) 2016/679 on the adequate protection of personal data by Brazil

[440] · Adequacy · 04 November 2025 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT TRANSFERS

Brazil's LGPD is closely aligned with the GDPR and the ANPD, made a regulatory agency on 15 September 2025 with over 200 new posts and fines of up to 2% of revenue, is effective, so the EDPB supports the draft adequacy decision while asking the Commission to clarify and monitor whether the LGPD covers criminal law enforcement, the absence of an explicit high-risk DPIA duty, the commercial secrecy limit on transparency, the onward transfer exceptions in Article 33 LGPD, the breadth of national security and the 48-agency SISBIN intelligence system, and the National Council's influence over the ANPD. The Commission adopted the adequacy decision on 26 January 2026 (Decision (EU) 2026/179); exporters may rely on it within its scope, with four-yearly reviews.

Opinion 26/2025 regarding the European Commission Draft Implementing Decision pursuant to Regulation (EU) 2016/679 on the adequate protection of personal data by the United Kingdom

[441] · Adequacy · 16 October 2025 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT TRANSFERS

The UK framework as amended by the Data (Use and Access) Act 2025 remains aligned with the EU regime, so the EDPB supports renewing GDPR adequacy until December 2031. It asks the Commission to monitor the Secretary of State's powers to change the rules by secondary legislation, the ICO's new board structure and complaint triage, the recognised legitimate interests basis for disclosures to public authorities, the onward transfer test of protection not materially lower, relaxed automated decision-making rules, wider national security exemptions, technical capability notices affecting end-to-end encryption, bulk personal dataset authorisations and the immigration exemption. Exporters to the UK may keep relying on adequacy but should watch those points.

Opinion 27/2025 regarding the European Commission Draft Implementing Decision pursuant to Directive (EU) 2016/680 on the adequate protection of personal data by the United Kingdom

[442] · Adequacy · 16 October 2025 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT TRANSFERS ENFORCEMENT

The EDPB supports extending the UK's Law Enforcement Directive adequacy for six years to 27 December 2031, reviewed within four years, while flagging that the Data (Use and Access) Act replaces the onward transfer test with a standard of protection not materially lower and drops factors such as national security rules, loosens automated decision-making with an exemption for avoiding obstruction of investigations, removes the duty to log justifications, widens national security exemptions under section 88, and gives the Secretary of State appointment powers over the restructured ICO. It asks the Commission to justify adequacy on each point. Law enforcement authorities exchanging data with UK counterparts may continue.

Opinion 06/2025 regarding the extension of the European Commission Implementing Decisions under the GDPR and the LED on the adequate protection of personal data in the United Kingdom

[443] · Adequacy · 06 May 2025 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT SUPERSEDED TRANSFERS

The EDPB accepted a technical, time-limited six-month extension of the UK GDPR and LED adequacy decisions from 27 June 2025 to 27 December 2025, because the Data (Use and Access) Bill introduced on 23 October 2024 was not expected to pass before late spring and the amended framework could not be assessed in time. It stated that the extension was exceptional and should not in principle be prolonged again, and asked the Commission to monitor UK developments closely during the period. The extension has expired; the renewal is covered by Opinions 26/2025 and 27/2025 of 16 October 2025 on the draft decisions running to December 2031.

Opinion 07/2025 regarding the European Commission Draft Implementing Decision pursuant to Regulation (EU) 2016/679 on the adequate protection of personal data by the European Patent Organisation

[444] · Adequacy · 06 May 2025 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT TRANSFERS

The European Patent Organisation's Data Protection Rules of 30 June 2021, overseen by a Data Protection Officer and a Data Protection Board, resemble the EU framework closely enough for the EDPB to support the draft adequacy decision, adopted 5 May 2025, subject to clarifications: that the European Patent Office stays ultimately responsible despite delegated controllers, that onward transmissions to public authorities and non-EEA contracting states keep the protection level, that the Data Protection Board's complaint decisions become binding, and that the President's discretion to waive immunity for law enforcement requests is bounded. The Commission adopted the decision on 15 July 2025 (Decision (EU) 2025/1382); firms sending personal data to the EPO may rely on it within its scope, with four-yearly reviews.

Opinion 5/2023 on the European Commission Draft Implementing Decision on the adequate protection of personal data under the EU-US Data Privacy Framework

[445] · Adequacy · 28 February 2023 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT HISTORICAL TRANSFERS

The EDPB welcomed that Executive Order 14086 introduces necessity and proportionality into US signals intelligence, binds the entire intelligence community and creates the Data Protection Review Court, while raising concerns about temporary bulk collection without prior independent authorisation, onward transfers, the standard non-appealable response of the redress court and the absence of specific rules on automated decision-making. It recommended that the Commission make adequacy conditional on the updated intelligence policies and procedures and closely monitor the redress mechanism. The Commission adopted the adequacy decision on 10 July 2023, so the opinion now serves as the reference for the review points.

Opinion 32/2021 regarding the European Commission Draft Implementing Decision pursuant to Regulation (EU) 2016/679 on the adequate protection of personal data in the Republic of Korea

[446] · Adequacy · 24 September 2021 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT HISTORICAL TRANSFERS

Korea's Personal Information Protection Act offers protection with numerous similarities to the GDPR, but the EDPB conditions its support on clarifications: the binding force of PIPC Notification No. 2021-1, the exemption of pseudonymised data from access, rectification and erasure rights, the lack of a general right to withdraw consent, onward transfers that rest on consent without disclosure of third-country risks, and unclear rules on government access and intelligence sharing. The opinion is addressed to the European Commission, which subsequently adopted the adequacy decision. Exporters relying on that decision should note the points the EDPB asked the Commission to monitor.

Opinion 14/2021 regarding the European Commission Draft Implementing Decision pursuant to Regulation (EU) 2016/679 on the adequate protection of personal data in the United Kingdom

[447] · Adequacy · 13 April 2021 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT HISTORICAL TRANSFERS

UK data protection law shows strong convergence with the GDPR on core principles, but the EDPB flags points the Commission must resolve or monitor: the broadly formulated immigration exemption, the UK's power to recognise third countries as adequate and its agreement with the US under the CLOUD Act, the absence of an Article 48 equivalent, bulk interception where selectors have not been examined by oversight bodies, and intelligence sharing under national security exemptions. The four-year sunset clause is welcomed as the safeguard against divergence. Addressed to the Commission, which adopted the decision; exporters to the UK should track the renewal and the areas listed for monitoring.

Opinion 15/2021 regarding the European Commission Draft Implementing Decision pursuant to Directive (EU) 2016/680 on the adequate protection of personal data in the United Kingdom

[448] · Adequacy · 13 April 2021 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT HISTORICAL TRANSFERS OTHER

The EDPB finds strong alignment between the UK Data Protection Act 2018 and the Law Enforcement Directive on lawfulness, purpose limitation, data quality, special categories and automated decisions, and finds the UK rules on onward transfers from law enforcement authorities essentially equivalent in principle. It asks the Commission to address onward transfers based on UK-only adequacy findings, national security access including certificates that restrict data protection duties, the independence of judicial commissioners, and the effect of the UK-US CLOUD Act agreement, and it welcomes the four-year sunset clause. Addressed to the Commission on 13 April 2021; relevant to competent authorities sharing data with UK law enforcement bodies rather than to private controllers.

Opinion 28/2018 regarding the European Commission Draft Implementing Decision on the adequate protection of personal data in Japan

[449] · Adequacy · 05 December 2018 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT HISTORICAL TRANSFERS

The Board welcomed the Supplementary Rules that Japan adopted to bridge gaps with the GDPR and called them essential to adequacy, but asked the Commission to resolve remaining concerns before finalising the decision: consent withdrawal treated as merely desirable, onward transfers losing the Supplementary Rule protections, record-keeping on data origin limited to three years, insufficient evidence that government access is essentially equivalent, and no general rules on automated decisions. It recommended review every two years rather than four and monitoring of the binding force of the PPC Guidelines. Exporters relying on the Japan adequacy decision should read it for the limits of the finding, notably on onward transfers.

Report on stakeholder event on processing of personal data to target or deliver political advertisements

[451] · Reports, statements, and letters · 27 March 2026 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT HISTORICAL MARKETING CONSENT CONTROLLER PROCESSOR

Stakeholders consulted online on 27 March 2026 (232 participants from platforms, ad tech, civil society, academia, public authorities and political entities) told the EDPB that the political advertising regulation (TTPA) leaves the definition of political advertising, the line between targeting and delivery, explicit consent and age verification unclear, that several platforms have stopped offering political advertising, and that platforms often misdescribe themselves as processors when they act as controllers. The report records those views for the EDPB's forthcoming TTPA guidelines and binds nobody. Publishers, platforms and campaigners should track the guidelines and settle controller roles in their advertising supply chain now.

EDPB letter to the European Commission on the privacy implications of recent proposed legislative changes regarding entry conditions to the United States for EEA citizens

[452] · Reports, statements, and letters · 12 March 2026

Report on stakeholder event on anonymisation and pseudonymisation of 12 December 2025

[453] · Reports, statements, and letters · 18 February 2026 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT HISTORICAL OTHER CONTROLLER PROCESSOR

Stakeholders at the EDPB's remote event on 12 December 2025 (115 participants, mostly business associations, law firms, academia and NGOs) asked for a concrete, practical methodology for judging identifiability after the Court of Justice's ruling, especially for SMEs, and disagreed on whose perspective decides whether data is personal in controller-processor relationships and after transmission to third parties, third countries or the public. The report feeds the pseudonymisation Guidelines 01/2025 and the forthcoming anonymisation guidelines and binds nobody. Organisations relying on pseudonymised data sharing should document the re-identification risk assessment from the recipient's perspective and the legal, organisational and technical measures that support it.

EDPB Report on the public consultation on helpful templates for organisations to facilitate their GDPR compliance

[455] · Reports, statements, and letters · 12 February 2026 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT GOVERNANCE LAWFUL BASIS TRANSPARENCY

Of 82 written contributions received between 5 November and 3 December 2025 (71 from the EU and EEA, 11 from third countries), respondents most often asked for EU-level templates for records of processing activities, DPIAs, legitimate interest assessments, privacy notices, transfer impact assessments, processing agreements, breach notification forms and privacy risk assessments. The EDPB commits in its 2026–2027 work programme to produce three: a legitimate interest assessment, a record of processing activities and a privacy notice, harmonised with existing national templates, with more if time allows. Organisations, especially SMEs, should plan to align their internal forms with these once published rather than build new ones now.

EDPB Work Programme 2026-2027

[456] · Reports, statements, and letters · 12 February 2026 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT GOVERNANCE TRANSPARENCY

The EDPB's 2026-2027 programme, adopted 11 February 2026, lists guidelines to expect on anonymisation, pseudonymisation, legitimate interest, children's data, consent or pay models, scientific research, generative AI data scraping, telemetry and diagnostic data and blockchain, EU templates for breach notifications, DPIAs, legitimate interest assessments, records of processing and privacy notices, updated DPO guidelines, updated guidelines on administrative fines, and guidance on the interplay of the GDPR with the AI Act, DMA, DSA, political advertising and AML rules, joint with other regulators for the AI Act and DMA. The 2026 coordinated enforcement action targets transparency obligations under Articles 12 to 14. Practitioners should map pending guidance against open policy decisions and prepare transparency notices for the 2026 sweep.

[488] · Reports, statements, and letters · 09 March 2021 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT HISTORICAL COOKIES TRACKING OTHER

The Council's negotiating mandate of 10 February 2021 on the ePrivacy Regulation risks lowering protection below the current Directive: the EDPB rejects general and indiscriminate retention of traffic and location data, calls for an explicit prohibition of cookie walls with a fair alternative, opposes further processing of metadata on a compatibility test, finds the exceptions in Articles 6, 6b and 6c too broad, and insists that data protection authorities enforce the Regulation within the GDPR cooperation mechanisms. Addressed to the co-legislators. The position is historical, but it records the EDPB's standing view on cookie walls and on metadata retention.

Position paper on Interplay between data protection and competition law

[507] · Other policy document · 17 January 2025 SOURCE: PUBLISHED DOCUMENT GOVERNANCE ENFORCEMENT

Data protection and competition law pursue distinct objectives but both protect the individual, as data subject and as consumer, and personal data is central to digital business models, so the two sets of authorities must coordinate. Following the CJEU judgment in Meta v Bundeskartellamt, a competition authority assessing abuse of dominance may need to examine GDPR compliance but cannot replace the competent data protection authority, and the principle of sincere cooperation makes cooperation mandatory in some cases. The paper recommends dedicated coordination teams, cooperation protocols with deadlines and information-sharing rules, and joint sector inquiries. Expect the data combination, terms of use and consent practices of dominant firms to be reviewed by both regulators.
